

PROTECT YOUR IDENTITY When You're Traveling

Don't let criminals steal your identity when you're abroad.

TRAVEL RISKS

Every two seconds someone's identity is stolen

13.1 million identity theft victims

39% of survey respondents became identity theft victims while traveling or knew someone who did

1 in 5 consumers had an item with sensitive information lost or stolen while traveling

8,000 mobile devices lost at U.S. airports

BEFORE YOU LEAVE

Documents: Scan and store important travel documents in a secure online repository for easy access when identification is stolen or lost.

Be Smart: Register in the Smart Traveler Enrollment Program for government alerts and tips.

Travel Light: Take only what you need. Leave behind checkbooks, Social Security cards and credit cards you won't use.

Mail: Put mail on "postal hold" at your local postal office or online.

Home: Make your home look lived-in by arranging for someone you trust to pick-up newspapers and deliveries.

Bank: Update banks, credit unions and credit card issuers with travel plans and activate fraud alerts.

WHILE YOU'RE TRAVELING

Money belts: Use money belts and sturdy shoulder bags with straps across the chest to keep valuables safe.

Safes: Place cash, credit cards and passports in hotel safe whenever not in use.

Wi-Fi: Avoid using public computers to access anything sensitive.

Social Media: By telling people where you are, you are also telling them where you aren't—at home.

HOW TO GET HELP
